

Long Term TU250X: Touring Prep

Mr. Seck prepares the little Suzuki for the next challenge: two-up touring!

Words and photos by Richard Seck | July 29, 2013 (excerpts)

The Enduristan Monsoon Soft Saddlebags are Swiss-designed and are said to be completely waterproof. Their multilayer construction and attention to detail are impressive. They're actually designed for the abuse that an adventure-touring bike can throw at them, so they should be more than up to the task on the TU.

Black Dog Cycle Works, the North American distributor for Enduristan products also supplied us with a sturdy-looking, expandable Sandstorm 2 Sport Tank Bag and a waterproof map holder that Velcros to the top of the bag.

The tank bag had the unexpected added bonus of perfectly fitting the removable guts of my Think Tank City Walker 10 camera bag. It's as if Enduristan had collaborated with Think Tank on this. It's great as I can have my camera extremely handy while traveling and put the collapsible camera bag in the luggage.

When we arrive at our destination and want to do a little walking around with the camera, I simply pop the camera compartment out of the tank bag back into its original bag. How good is that?

By the way, the Enduristan bags mounted easily onto the TU as they provided all the necessary hardware along with a great set of instructions. Gotta' love the Swiss!

Enjoy the ride!

Cheers, Mr. Seck

Perfect for carrying the camera and other smaller bits.